PRODUCTS USED: Expona Flow

High design commercial sheet vinyl flooring from Polyflor's Expona Flow PUR collection was used to create a vibrant new restaurant area at University Hospital Wales in Cardiff.

Formerly known as the Heathfields restaurant, this hospital canteen has undergone a transformation and is now called Y Gegin, which means "The Kitchen" in Welsh. Approximately 600m² of Polyflor flooring was installed throughout the restaurant by Swansea based contractors Artisan Flooring.

The grey-toned Silver Oak and Smoked Oak wood effect designs from Polyflor's Expona Flow flooring collection were installed alongside each other throughout the serving stations, cashier desks, dining areas and around vending machines.

Jonathan Aver from the hospital's Capital Planning and Estate Management department commented, "Since Y Gegin was opened in October 2016 we've had fantastic feedback from visitors and staff who use the restaurant about its modern new look and our offering of healthy and affordable freshly cooked food. The flooring performs well, looks great and is easy to maintain."
